Mr. Van Dyke is a litigator with both private practice and in-house experience. He handles all aspects of discovery and managing litigation in matters involving employment, subrogation, product liability, construction defect, aviation, catastrophic construction injuries, premises liability, personal injury, professional liability, breach of contract, extra-contractual liability and commercial disputes. He has created and implemented nationwide litigation strategies and overseen direct reports and outside defense counsel.

As a senior counsel at Uber Technologies, Inc. in the safety and insurance department, Mr. Van Dyke managed a portfolio of pre-litigation and litigation matters. From inception to resolution, he prepared litigation strategies to limit exposure and media on both macro and micro levels. He was tapped to provide training to the legal department on trial and pre-trial strategies and streamlined procedures for more efficient trial and discovery processes. In private practice, he represented transportation and construction companies in matters involving vehicular liability, premise liability, construction defects and product liability. Additionally, he coordinated litigation across the country as national counsel for various trucking companies.
