

ROBERT S. SMITH

PARTNER

Robert S. Smith focuses his practice on counseling and defending insurers, employers, and third-party administrators in a wide range of workers' compensation claims. He has extensive experience and regularly represents clients in trials and depositions before the New York State Workers' Compensation Board. Rob's background includes handling employment and labor cases, including discrimination claims and matters involving workers' safety.

Rob also advises and defends municipal clients in Section 1983 civil rights matters and represents clients in matters involving employment law including completing internal investigations related to Title VII employment discrimination.

While earning his J.D. from Albany Law School, Rob served as an intern with the Albany County Public Defender.
